Fantastic though it sounds a committee of eight distinguished British scientists has prepared a report proposing that "vital foodstuffs" (dairy products, eggs, fruits, vegetables and certain meats) be removed from the normal field of supply and demand and be distributed at minimum cost through government controlled channels. Their lengthy report follows this line of reasoning—Modern science has shown that such foods are as indispensable to a healthy populace as is a pure water supply. Hence it is the government's duty to provide them to all at minimum cost. By setting up a special distribution system and assuring farmers a large steady market, the government would induce farmers to produce an increasing supply at progressively lower prices. The idea has already won the approval of British trade-union leaders with whom it has been discussed.

"The Aryan Fatherland, which has nursed the Souls of heroes, calls upon you for the supreme sacrifice which you, to whom flows heroic blood, will not fail, and which will echo forever down the corridor of history." (Typical speech of an aspiring Hitler). (The plain meaning is this)—"Every adult in the geographical area called Germany will receive not more than two loaves of bread a week for the next six months."

The beech wood grey rose dim in the night
With moonlight fallen in pools of light
The long dead leaves on the ground were rained,
A clock struck twelve and the church bells chimed.

A FARMER'S MUSINGS

(By Tim Longbottom)

The lady who wrote to a city editor had plenty of justification for her protest. She was paying 25 cents per dozen for grade A eggs at the time that wholesalers were offering 19 cents F. O. B. in the same town.

Surely the expensiveness of a "just price" should find out the reason for such a tremendous spread between producer and consumer.

The Californian professor who stated that the Scots are getting fresh for lack of milk must have got mixed up in his beverages.

He should have said whisky, for the poor guys over there cannot afford to use it any more.

Once upon a time they could make their porridge of it, but this has been rendered impossible by repeated increases of the excise duty.

It is no wonder that our compatriots are getting shorter and slimmer on the modern breakfast of prune juice and cornflakes. We'd rather have the old style any morning at all.

Although our American friends are frequently amused by the British people's affectionate demonstrations for members of the Royal household they also go the limit when any son or daughter of fair Columbia has done something to warm their hearts.

The latest example of this was the reception given by New Yorkers to the lad who said that a family compass had taken him to the old Erie instead of his native state.

It was a lovely excuse for violating the law, and a great many people shared their pleasure in a manner that recalled the welcome offered to the intrepid Landburg on his return from his historic flight across the Atlantic.

Like a lot of other folks we'd rather have the American way of treating individuals than the Japanese methods. The sons of Zippon seem to shew the most of their honour to those who follow the age-old custom of committing suicide, and were bidden all who bungle the job.

Quite recently one fellow threw himself into the crater of a living volcano, but had the ill luck to fall on to a ledge near the top.

He was rescued in a pitiful condition and for his failure to make a heroic exit from the stage of life he was rewarded with a long spell in jail. Worse still he will be regarded as an outcast for the rest of his days on earth.

FORWARD STEP
The voluntary reduction of the mortgage rate to 6 per cent was a step in the right direction and one which should have been taken in the long ago.

The old general rate of 8 per cent would have needed a wealthy nation let alone a large group of sorely pressed agriculturists, and for that reason it is good to view it as a thing of the past.

Interest on provincial bonds is still out of line with conditions here and elsewhere, and a reduction procured through the medium of amicable negotiation would be a blessing to many.

While investors are entitled to a fair return for the use of their money, any more than this leads to unnecessary suffering among the working people of the land.

Those who cling to the belief that a contract should be fulfilled to the utmost have forgotten that the Golden Rule is a much nobler instrument of justice than any man-made law.

AMPLE COMPETITION
Mr Hepburn's caustic remarks on the wheat board revealed a man whose narrow Provincialism has blinded him to hard facts.

If no western market existed for the manufacturers of the East, Mr Hepburn's own province would not be so thickly settled or as prosperous as it is today.

It may also be said that if the people of Ontario have contributed heavily to the Dominion treasury for a number of years, they have been amply recompensed by a flood of cheap food from western farms.

When men of the Hepburn type recognize these things in their proper light, the present day hicketying will cease to be an unpleasant feature of the national life.

FRIENDS
By Jack Jamieson
Joys are like the sunshine,
Tears are like the dew,
Life is but a garden
Planted with memories true.

Friends are like the flowers,
Affection is the care
That makes the garden lovely
And keeps them blooming there.

These flowers never wilt,
Though death may bear them far.
They still stay very lovely,
Shining like a star.

CONTINUATION OF WHEAT PREFERENCE URGED BY EXCHANGE

Urging that the preference accorded to Canadian grain imported into the United Kingdom under the Ottawa agreements of 1932 be maintained, the Council of the Wheat Grain Exchange has sent a letter, to Prime Minister Mr. MacDonald, King and members of the Dominion Government stating that the immediate interests of Canadian farmers will be best served by continuation of the preference.

In advocating continuation of the preference, the Exchange, in its letter said:

"The favorable crop prospects for the current year in Canada, the United States and other countries, including some of the importing countries, indicate that there will be a considerable world exportable surplus in excess of the world's immediate import requirements, reduced as they have been in recent years by the stringent restriction of imports imposed by European importing countries in the endeavor to stimulate their domestic grain production and render themselves as far as possible self-supporting in essential foodstuffs.

"The marketing of the exportable surplus of Canadian grain during 1938-39 will require every effort of those concerned; apart altogether from any consideration of methods of marketing, and the moment would therefore seem to be entirely inopportune to increase the competition which Canadian grain must meet in the United Kingdom market by abrogating the British preference. Whatever benefit may have accrued to the Canadian grain growers from the operation of the British preferential arrangements ought not to be sacrificed at this juncture in the desire, however laudable in itself, to encourage trade between Great Britain, Canada and the United States, especially in view of the possibility of such sacrifice resulting in the accumulation of a new surplus of unsold grain with its resulting effect in depressing grain prices during future years.

The Holy Land—the refuge of the Hebrews, after their flight from Egypt; the scene of the ministration and Life of The Messiah, now torn with strife between Jew and Arab, the name today is a misnomer.

NEW BRIDGE CONNECTING CANADA AND UNITED STATES

Thursday August 18th will mark the opening of another new International Bridge between Fry Lake, Ontario, 30 miles east of Kingston and Collins Landing, N. Y.

Two 21 gun salutes one fired by a Canadian Battery, and the other by a United States battery will mark the opening of the 2 hour ceremony. The dedication program will continue over three days, as part of the ceremony President Roosevelt received an honorary degree of L. L. D. from Queen's University.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt will represent the two great British speaking countries. These two great peace loving democracies should prove a strong object lesson to the warring countries of the world whose governments are carrying on warfare, leaving destruction, suffering and loss of hope and life—for what gain?

To quote the report of Mr. Justice Turgeon—
"If ever again circumstances should induce the Government of Canada to intervene in wheat marketing by paying the producer a price in excess of world prices, no attempt should be made to enforce that excessive price overseas, that is, to pass the burden of our relief to the producer on to the buyer. He will not accept the burden. And in the long run all attempts to pass it on, by withholding supplies or otherwise, will prove detrimental to the producers themselves, because it will again impinge buyers toward Canadian wheat."

HITLER STRATEGY

An old adage says all is fair in war but one doubts the truthfulness of a man who while protesting he wants "Peace" permits a group of his soldiers to cross disguised as civilians the borderland into Czechoslovakia. It reminds one too forcibly of the "wooden horse" in the early days of Greece. It does not look well.

PREPARING VEGETABLE EXHIBITS FOR SCHOOL FAIRS

The lack of proper preparation of vegetables for exhibit at the country and school fairs during the fall season has been so much in evidence during past years that the writer, who has judged at many such fairs, feels it timely to offer suggestions which may be of help to the prospective exhibitor. The scope of this article is much too limited, however, to make detailed suggestions on the preparation of the individual vegetables and therefore a general outline only will be attempted.

The uniformity of any exhibit is of prime importance. The vegetables on an exhibit should be similar in size and shape. Too many exhibitors fail, owing to the lack of uniformity in their entry.

Each specimen should be fresh, firm, smooth and free from blemish. Nothing wilted, soft, spongy or decayed should be entered for an exhibit. Weight is taken into consideration when cabbage, melons, squash, pumpkins, onions and citreus are judged. While coarseness is always to be avoided, the heavier specimens are invariably placed first by the judges.

The size which certain vegetables should be to obtain first place, is a much debated point. Many exhibitors give preference to large size, rather than to quality. Invariably large size does not denote quality. Medium size in most cases is usually chosen. Skin color distinctions are often important in vegetables for exhibit. In general the deeper shades are preferable to the lighter shades, but the color must always be typical of the variety. For instance, deep yellow carrots are preferable to light yellow. Dark red beets are more desirable than the lighter colored. Pure white cauliflower is ranked higher than light or cream colored. Dark green spinach and parsley are preferred to light green.

The vegetables should be as free as possible from disease, insect injury, growth cracks, discolorations and any abnormal or deformed growth. Among the root vegetables in particular it should be pointed out that side roots and flesh discolorations are very objectionable. The white rings in beets should be as small as possible or entirely absent. A small core is highly desirable in carrots.

A proper balance is of utmost importance in the preparation of collections of vegetables. Every kind or variety should be conspicuous and stand out from its neighbor. This is often aided considerably by choosing shallow containers in which has been placed the green tops of mature asparagus. Crepe paper, of a color which blends with the general color scheme, also helps materially to make the exhibit pleasing to the eye.

NIGHTINGALE

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stoodley and Miss Hazel entertained a number of old friends and neighbors last Friday in honor of their parents Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stoodley whose silver wedding fell on that date. The evening was pleasantly spent in social conversation and community singing. Mr. and Mrs. Stoodley received some lovely gifts along with good wishes for many more years of happiness.

Mrs. Fletcher of High River visited with the Newall family last week.

Mr. George Carlson has been quite ill but is now slowly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bragg spent the week end with the Harriman family. They were on their way home from summer school in Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Harper and children of Chesham, also Mrs. Harper's mother and Miss Mabel Phillips were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones recently.

Mrs. Patricia Githard of Calgary is spending part of her vacation with her grandmother Mrs. Duggan.

Mrs. Art Kimmitt spent a few days with her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Hansen at Rosebud. She went over to admire her new grand daughter Myrna Fay.

The Women's Institute held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Duggan last Friday. Children's sayings was the roll call and was well answered. The attendance was very good and a pleasant social afternoon was much enjoyed. Mrs. Thurston on behalf of the members of the institute presented a set of spoons to Mrs. Stoodley as a remembrance for her silver wedding. Mrs. Stoodley responded in a few well chosen words. A delicious tea was served at the close of the afternoon.

The sympathy of this community goes to Mrs. Lyons and family of Blairton in their recent bereavement.

Swastika had quite a shock when she found herself and baby sitting in a mud hole not far from town. The road was rough and the baby, a little girl, fell out and in trying to catch the child a rein was lost. The team ran and one horse was badly cut and the buggy smashed. Mrs. Schaffer and baby were lucky to escape with a ducking.

There's nothing like a cool little frock for general wear, especially a little spectator sports frock done in washable silk. Here is a beauty in powder blue silk. It has all sorts of interesting detail, including self-piped edges to its smart neckline and belt. Dark red stone studs close the dress to right below the belt. The yoke on the bodice terminates in ruffling, with released, inverted pleats on the skirt, three in front and three in back. The plain sleeve has self piping at the cuffs.
